BILL JACOBSON

Jacobson delves further into the sublime with a group of soft-focus color photos so luminous they seem to glow from within. Whether his subject is the stormy sky over a country road, the sunlight glinting down a narrow corridor of buildings, or a seated nude, Jacobson carves out a space as charged as it is contemplative—truly a world of his own. He uses color with deft assurance, giving the work a blushing, powdery tactility you want to sink right into. ALETTI
